Women paid to have sex with Italian prime minister Silvio Berlusconi dressed in nurse and police uniforms and performed stripteases at parties, it was claimed today.

The damaging allegations emerged in court documents which are part of a probe into Berlusconi, 74, looking at charges of extortion and using underaged prostitutes.

Some women even put on a 'lesbian' show for him and his cronies.

Former dental hygienist Nicole Minetti, now a local politician representing his party, is named as a recruiter of the girls.

Silvio Berlusconi arrives in a meeting in Rome today while in Milan former dental hygienist and local politician Nicole Minetti attends a session in the Lombardy regional parliament

According to a telephone tap transcript in the paperwork, a former police officer is heard saying: 'Minetti was there with her chest out kissing Berlusconi continuously. It was a real whorehouse. All the girls were given rings and necklaces.'

Today as the sordid details dominated Italian newspapers and TV news bulletins, even the Catholic Church stepped in with the official newspaper Avvenire saying it was 'wounded and shocked.'

Minetti, a former showgirl, helped restore Berlusconi's smile - literally - after he was struck in the face at a political rally with a marble statue, breaking two of his teeth.

She was his dental hygienist, and she swiftly made the move into politics by joining his People Of Freedom party, scoring a seat in Lombardy's regional parliament.

According to a telephone transcript a former police officer says: "Minetti was there with her chest out kissing Berlusconi continuously. It was a real whorehouse. All the girls were given rings and necklaces."

For almost two years Berlusconi has been involved in a series of sleazy sex scandals but the latest revelations have been the worst yet as sordid details of his infamous 'bunga bunga' parties emerge.

The perma tanned politician regularly hosted parties at his residences in Milan, Rome and on the island of Sardinia at which high class escorts and wannabe TV starlets were guests.

In the 400-page document, it is claimed the girls would stroke themselves up and down Berlusconi and allow themselves to be touched, acting provocatively and vulgarly.

It went on to describe how there were wardrobes with varying uniforms which the women would put on to carry out stripteases and how they would dance seductively, semi-naked, lesbian style.

Close ally: Buxom Nicole Minetti appeared on the racy TV show Scorie in February last year

A significant number of women were involved in the parties and they were paid and given gifts, with the prosecution documents detailing rivalry between them as those who stayed the night with Berlusconi were paid more.

Prosecutors are investigating Berlusconi after questioning belly dancer Karima El Mahroug, 18, who was a guest at a party last year when she was still only 17.

They claim that sex took place with other underage girls and that Berlusconi also used his position as prime minister to put pressure on police to release Karima when she was arrested for theft last May.

Teenage nightclub dancer Karima El Mahroug here last year, goes by the name of Ruby Heartbreak. She was a guest at one of Berlusconi's parties when still 17

Berlusconi is said to have personally called the police station in Milan and wrongly said she was the grand daughter of Egyptian president Hosni Mubarak and should be released so as to avoid diplomatic embarrassment.

Both of them deny having sex but prosecutors have a telephone intercept in which Karima is heard telling a friend: 'I told Silvio i wanted five million Euro for all this.'

She adds: 'he told me he would pay me all I wanted, in gold, but that I should just keeping making things up and pretend I'm mad but not reveal anything and stay quiet.'

Berlusconi's wife Veronica is divorcing him after it emerged he'd been at the 18th birthday party of underwear model Noemi Letizia, left. He has also been linked to Venezuelan actress Aida Yespica

Announcing the split she said: "I can longer be with a man who is ill and who associates himself with minors."

Prosecutors want Berlusconi to present himself for questioning and are pushing for fast track trial and he has said that he is willing to speak to them in order to prove his innocence.

Political analysts said the growing scandal could push Italy towards a fresh election ahead of the one scheduled for 2013 and just a month after Berlusconi won a crucial double no confidence vote.

Berlusconi denies all the charges, insisting that he has been in a stable relationship since the split from his wife.

Why all the fuss? I can only conclude that those who complain, lead sad little lives, and are incredibly jealous. If others want this sort of life style, then they should simply enter the world of politics. However there are other activities entered into by politicians that should come under public scrutiny, and that is why we here in Britain are still 'connected' to the EU, when more than 85% of The British People are totally against it. So here we have enormous efforts to remove Mr Berlusconi from office, for holding a few 'colourful' parties, and here in Britain, politicians commit Fraud, Theft, and Treason, whilst our Justice System looks the other way, perhaps not wishing to spoil their chances of 'Bonuses', Knighthoods, and Peerages.

His street cred as a politician is shot BUT think of the media opportunities with Italian 2000 hair colouring (upgraded from Grecian 2000) and then lagra (Italian version of Viagra)
